DIRECTOR NOTES

The stories of Mowgli, the man-cub raised by wolves in the Jungles of India, were first published in 1893 and have evolved through many adaptations fascinating generations of children since then. The author Rudyard Kipling was born in India and spent his childhood there. As an adult, he returned to India and began to realize the deep impact this place had on him. He used the magnificent Jungles and the animals that lived there as vessels to tell stories about the connection between the human world and the animal world. As Mowgli learned important life lessons about both the beauty and dangers of the jungle, so did the children reading these stories. My first introduction to Mowgli was through the 1967 Disney film at the age of 6, and I was immediately drawn into the stunning images of the jungle and the incredibly human-like animals. Now nearly 50 years after the 1967 animated film, I am fortunate to be here sharing The Jungle Book with a new generation! This cast of young actors has floored me from day one with their talents and passion for performing and story telling. It has been my pleasure to work with each one of them. On behalf of Young Actors' Theatre, we thank Alexa and Matt (the heart and talent you have shared with these kids has been absolutely priceless!), all the parents (this would never be possible without your contributions) and YOU for being here to support the arts and the children of our community. THANK YOU!
